INTRODUCTION

A Crisis Ignored – Antisemitism on College Campuses in 2024

StopAntisemitism's 2024 College Report is being released one year since the outbreak of the Israel-Hamas war, and the findings are deeply disturbing, troubling, and downright depressing. In the wake of the 10/7 massacre, we've seen an unprecedented surge of antisemitism on college campuses, and the data tells a chilling story. Since last year's staggering 1,500% increase in antisemitic submissions, StopAntisemitism has been forced to triple the size of our team just to manage the deluge of reports. This year alone, we've seen a jaw-dropping 3,000% rise in antisemitic tips and submissions, as universities across the country fail to protect their Jewish students in the wake of violent antisemitic uprisings.

Many of the schools we evaluated will receive failing grades, and the reasons are both alarming and unsurprising. Jewish students and professors have been ambushed, harassed, stalked, and physically assaulted. Mezuzahs have been torn from doorways, and mobs of peers openly called for their deaths, chanting genocidal slogans. And what did many of the universities do? Absolutely nothing of consequence. Their DEI programs—supposedly created to protect vulnerable minorities—crumbled under pressure, leaving Jewish students defenseless. These institutions enabled privileged mobs to commit some of the most vicious hate crimes witnessed on American soil since the civil rights era, targeting Jews with impunity. When it mattered most, these universities failed to confront the most pressing questions:

Did they protect their Jewish students?
Did they unequivocally stand with Israel against Hamas?

The answer, tragically, in many cases is no. Some schools simply ignored the situation, while others created actively hostile environments for their Jewish students through sheer inaction or, worse, willful abandonment. The “negative findings” section of this report has been revised accordingly, and if it were possible to assign certain schools a grade lower than an “F,” we wouldn't hesitate.

Our updated assessments and grades for 25 higher education institutions across the nation—evaluated in the wake of the 10/7 massacre—highlight the rapidly evolving crisis of antisemitism on U.S. campuses. We hope this report will serve as an indispensable resource for parents who are concerned about the safety and well-being of their children as they consider higher education.

INTRODUCTION

StopAntisemitism's 2022 inaugural report exposed how some of America's most esteemed institutions have utterly failed to address antisemitism on their campuses. Since then, other reports may have surfaced, but none dig as deep or provide the critical answers Jewish parents and students need. With antisemitism reaching record highs, this information has never been more vital for families vetting colleges. Our findings empower parents and students to make informed choices, ensuring their college experience is defined by growth and enjoyment—not fear, hatred, or hiding their identity.

Only 2 out of the 25 schools bothered to complete the administration survey, a sharp decline from the already dismal 7 out of 25 last year. In stark contrast, over 500 Jewish students stepped forward to complete StopAntisemitism's questionnaire, demonstrating a glaring disconnect between university leadership and the students they're failing to protect.

The findings are nothing short of alarming:

- 55% of Jewish students have personally been victims of antisemitism at their schools.
- 43% did not feel safe enough to report the incidents. Of those who did report, a staggering 87% believe their school failed to properly investigate.
- 43% hide their Jewish identity from their classmates out of fear.
- 72% feel unwelcome in certain spaces on campus simply for being Jewish.
- 67% say Jews are completely excluded from their school's DEI initiatives.
- 69% are blamed for the actions of Israel—actions they have no control over.
- 67% feel their university did not take sufficient action to protect Jewish students in the wake of the 10/7 massacre.
- And perhaps most heartbreaking: 43% would not recommend their school to fellow Jewish students.

These numbers lay bare the rampant failure of institutions to protect their Jewish students from hate, exclusion, and fear.

INTRODUCTION

As American universities increasingly emphasize racial issues, nearly all have set up Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) offices to combat bigotry. However, these DEI efforts often fail and completely exclude Jewish students. Discrimination against Jews, whether due to their religious identity or support for Israel, is frequently minimized compared to other forms of campus discrimination.

Out of the two schools that completed the survey, both claimed antisemitism was addressed in their DEI training and that they had formal procedures to handle it. Yet, only one confirmed the presence of Jewish affinity groups on campus and the adoption of the IHRA definition of antisemitism—a critical requirement for institutions receiving Federal Title VI funding. The IHRA definition offers a clear, internationally recognized standard for identifying antisemitism, essential for holding schools accountable. Without it, Jewish students are left vulnerable to their institution's arbitrary and subjective judgments.

With every passing year, antisemites grow bolder, brazenly spewing their hateful views and fueling demonstrations that incite antisemitic violence. This disturbing trend has intensified since the onset of the war, and Jewish students must be fully aware of these threats at the schools they're considering attending. This report is designed to arm Jewish families with the facts they need to make informed decisions about their loved ones' safety in higher education. Parents should seriously question whether they are comfortable sending their hard-earned tuition dollars to institutions that, either through negligence or complacency, allow antisemitism to flourish.

StopAntisemitism's report was meticulously compiled through outreach to university administrations, rigorous research, and, most importantly, firsthand accounts from the students themselves. This publication uses a grading system—much like a school report card—employing clear, predefined criteria to measure just how effectively these institutions are addressing and combating antisemitism on their campuses.

BASELINE MEASURES

When analyzing and grading each school, StopAntisemitism adhered to baseline measures under four categories, utilizing data available at the time of publication:

Protection:

How do the schools report antisemitic incidents?
 Is there willingness to work with Jewish advocacy groups?
 How do college administrators react after an incident occurs?

Allyship:

Does the college speak out against antisemitism?
 Are Jews included in the school’s DEI policies?
 Is there a DEI-sanctioned Jewish affinity group on campus?

Identity:

Do Jewish students feel safe at their school?
 Do Jewish students feel the need to hide their identity on campus?
 Do Jewish students feel that they are being held responsible for Israel’s actions?

Policy:

Is there a Students for Justice in Palestine (SJP) organization on campus?
 Have BDS resolutions been adopted?

Notes:

Only 2 schools have adopted International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance’s (IHRA) definition of antisemitism.

- The U.S. Department of Education launched a Title VI investigation into allegations of discrimination against Jewish students.
- Brown's Hillel received threatening emails, and a Jewish student's room was broken into with a threatening note left behind.
- Violent riots and illegal encampments led by Brown's Palestine Solidarity Caucus, SJP, and the Brown Divestment Coalition resulted in student arrests. Despite this, hundreds of faculty members supported calls for violence against Jewish students.
- While the president condemned antisemitism and BDS demands, Brown's leadership chose to settle with the violent students, opting for peaceful graduations and the dismantling of encampments.

- The U.S. Department of Education launched a Title VI investigation into allegations of discrimination against Jewish students.
- Student Patrick Dai made threats to shoot and stab Jewish students, called for rape against them, and vowed to attack the campus' kosher dining hall.
- Professor Russell Rickford publicly expressed being "exhilarated" by the October 7th attacks.
- A new lecture series on antisemitism, which also intertwined anti-Muslim hate, was introduced.
- Illegal encampments persisted for several weeks, leading to multiple suspensions.

CONCLUSION

Since the release of our 2023 report, StopAntisemitism has been flooded with firsthand accounts from Jewish students, families, and even some faculty, all detailing a surge in antisemitic harassment, threats, and exclusion on campuses nationwide. The numbers this year speak volumes, showing an overwhelming rise in antisemitic incidents following the October 7 massacre—a 3,000% increase in tips and submissions from Jewish students across the country. This disturbing trend makes it clear: Universities are failing their Jewish students, often leaving them vulnerable and unsupported.

The sheer volume of reports we received has pushed us to expand our team significantly, yet the responses from universities have been discouraging. Just two out of 25 schools responded to our survey, a stark indicator of a wider issue—leadership’s detachment from the very real dangers Jewish students face daily. Most schools continue to sideline antisemitism within their DEI policies, further alienating Jewish students who feel unwelcome and unsafe on campuses designed to be inclusive for all. Only a small percentage of students feel they can openly express their Jewish identity, while the majority fear being blamed for events beyond their control.

Despite these bleak findings, we are encouraged by the few schools that have taken proactive steps to counter this surge in antisemitism, establishing support systems and making public stances against terrorism & violence against Jews. Such actions serve as essential first steps, but much work remains.

It is imperative that every institution of higher education adopt the IHRA working definition of antisemitism, establish dedicated Jewish affinity groups, include antisemitism in DEI training, and protect Jewish students from targeted harassment by groups like Students for Justice in Palestine. Only by addressing these issues head-on can American universities hope to rebuild trust with Jewish students and families, ensuring a safe and supportive environment for all.

RECOMMENDATIONS

StopAntisemitism encourages the colleges and universities featured in this report to consider the following recommendations for improving their response to campus antisemitism. We invite these schools to contact StopAntisemitism for assistance in developing guidelines and initiatives to support their respective Jewish populations.

- Adopt the IHRA Working Definition of Antisemitism for assessing matters of antisemitism on campus. The Federal Government requires that universities adopt IHRA to be eligible for Title VI funding, and administrators who flout its prescriptions should be held accountable.
- Be proactive – take the necessary steps to address antisemitic incidents on campus as soon as they happen and issue statements expressing unequivocal solidarity with Jewish communities.
- Establish welcoming environments for Jewish students where they can openly explore their beliefs, celebrate their culture, and foster constructive dialogue about Jewish identity, including discussions on Zionism.
- Include Jews in all DEI policies, including the formation of an affinity group.
- Demand the suspension and expulsion of Students for Justice in Palestine for their persistent harassment, bullying, and acts of violence against Jewish students, especially following the October 7th massacre. Many campuses witnessed illegal encampments that barred Jewish students and faculty from entering, leading to widespread disruptions, including graduations.
- Call for the suspension and expulsion of Faculty for Justice in Palestine, a group actively working to silence and marginalize Jewish voices on campus and suppress the rights of Jewish students and colleagues.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- A new report from AMCHA Initiative exposes the alarming influence of Faculty for Justice in Palestine (FJP) in escalating anti-Israel unrest and antisemitism on U.S. campuses. FJP chapters, present at 55% of top schools for Jewish students, actively coordinate with anti-Zionist organizations, prolonging protests by 2.5 times and amplifying violence targeting Jews. Campuses with FJP chapters report 7.3 times more physical violence against Jewish individuals and 3.4 times more death threats. This international network is focused on dismantling Israel and endangering its supporters. University administrators must take action.

Jewish students should not have to consider their own safety when choosing which school to attend. Colleges should be places where everyone can coexist peacefully, without fear of prejudice against their identity, but too often Jews have been excluded from that coexistence. Fighting campus antisemitism not only helps Jewish students today, it lays the foundation for a future in which Jews are welcome at every campus.

The time to act is now.

ABOUT US

StopAntisemitism is a grassroots watchdog organization dedicated to exposing groups and individuals that espouse incitement towards the Jewish people and State and engage in antisemitic behaviors.

Founded in 2018, StopAntisemitism was born in response to increasing antisemitic violence and sentiment across the United States.

StopAntisemitism has developed a commanding following, reaching nearly half a billion individuals monthly through social media, mailers, and its website. By publicly exposing antisemites, StopAntisemitism has created an environment where those who propagate hatred against the Jewish people are met with real world consequences including but not limited to being arrested, job loss, school expulsions, and awards revoked.
